Over the course of his career, Mr. Morgus has led and participated in securing more than $500 million from the capital markets to fund growth initiatives.

“The establishment of the Board of Directors and the executive team is the next important step toward ensuring that physicians are the ones making clinical decisions for their patients as Medicaid transitions to managed care,” said Robert Seligson, CEO of the NCMS, which is currently CCHN’s sole shareholder. “We look forward to CCHN continuing to grow its board and its team as the state gets closer to choosing the health plans that will care for this patient population to which the NCMS has long been committed.”
